Authorities.

New York, June 5 .- George Cornell, captain of the American steamer Antills, brought his vessel into port yesterday from Copenhagen with a vigorous complaint against the treatment accorded him by the British authorities, who detained him 59 days on his outward voyage. Captain Cornell is a naturalized American of German descent. He sailed from New York in February with a cargo for Sweden and Denmark, which was loaded, he asserts, under the inspection of the British consul-general, who gave him a certificate. He was taken into Kirkwall and detained 11 days, during which time a guard, he asserted, watched him continuously. After having been ordered to Dundee, his vessel, he said, was detained 48 days there and half of the cargo taken off. On the return trip, Captain Cornell said, he was detained two and a half hours by a Brit-
